

Larry Barkan

After graduating from Northeastern Illinois University, Larry Barkan became a high school teacher in the Chicago Public Schools and remained so for 9 years.

In 1979, Larry entered the business world as a training manager for a multi-national corporation based in Evanston, Illinois. Subsequently, Larry held various management consulting and training positions in which he provided coaching to leaders who wished to enhance their impact, influence, and overall leadership effectiveness.

Larry started his own consulting practice, Barkan Associates, in 1984, co-founded Executive Resources Consulting Group in 1993, and currently serves as a partner in The Pivotal Factor, LLC, a firm dedicated to helping leaders achieve breakthrough results.

As an educator, Larry taught high school students how to read. It was obvious to him that they would be proficient readers if they spent as much time learning to read as they did avoiding the task. This realization began a life-long fascination with how we seem to sabotage our efforts to get what we say we want.

Conflict is a good example of this self-sabotage. Larry's first book, Everyone Wins! Playing the Game of Conflict in All Your Relationships, explains how we keep ourselves mired in conflict even though, all along, we have the power to get ourselves out of it.

Roger Wyer

As co-founder and partner in BizWorks Studio, Roger Wyer works with organizations to make desired changes quickly and effectively, often through reducing waste, improving customer service, and negotiating human resources issues. Roger helps individuals become the recognized expert in their field through writing, and coaches brides and grooms to choose joy for their weddings and their marriages.

As co-founder and partner in Conversation Point: Another School of Thought, Roger is creating an organic, self-sustaining system for generating meaningful conversations. Roger earned his BA in English at Arizona State University. He is a writer, publisher, and speaker. His first book is entitled Choosing Joy at Work.

Roger has served as in internal and external consultant to businesses and non-profit organizations for over twenty-five years, with experience in operations, systems, human resources, continuous improvement, community planning and volunteer leadership.

Throughout his life in business, Roger has been awed by the potential of people, and saddened by systems and ways of thinking that appear to limit the expression of that potential. Roger calls this gap "waste." BizWorks Studio provides a lab for developing ways to eliminate waste, and inspire and enlighten people.
